In the Hay Field.

The work of harvesting the hay crop is now in progress, and the processes employed bring forcibly to the minds of men more or less advanced in years the remarkable changes that have taken place in the methods of farm work as well as other things since the time when they were boys.

What may properly be called the present generation cannot remember when there were no mowing machines, tedders and horserakes, but there are men living who can recall the days when all the work in the hay field was done by hand, and, hard as it would seem to do the work that way now, the memory is not altogether unpleasant.

There were joys in the hay field in the old days. Brawny men went forth to the fields in the early morning with their freshly sharpened scythes and swung into the dewy grass with vigor, it being the pride of every man to be able to keep up with the procession. Where haying was to be done on a large scale more men were needed than now, and any one not able to "keep his end up," as they used to say, was the laughing stock of the force. Mowing in those days was considered almost an art on the farm, and the man who could turn the widest and smoothest swath and do it the quickest was distinguished among his fellows. The click of the whetstones as the scythes were sharpened made sweet music on the summer air, and the gurgling of the jug when the "refreshment corner" was reached carried cheer to the heart and satisfaction to the stomach. Later in the day the hay was raked by hand and drawn, in many cases, on ox carts to the barns, pitched to the mows by hand and leveled and trod down by the men there to receive it.

Today haying is done almost entirely by machinery. The grass is cut with a machine, shaken up for drying with a machine, hauled together with a self-dumping rake on which the driver rides—in some cases it is loaded upon the wagons with a machine—and in all cases where the work is conducted on any considerable scale the hay is elevated to the mows with a horse-power fork. The work of housing the hay crop is done far easier and more quickly than in the old days, to which, with all their pleasant associations, none would willingly return. There have been great changes on the farm as well as along other lines of industry, and nowhere are they more strikingly displayed than in the hay field.

Rockland, Me., has decided to send its delinquent poll-tax payers to jail, but as there are 700 of them they will be sent in bunches of 25 in order not to overtax the accommodations of the jail. After a few consignments have been "put across" the aggregate may begin to show signs of shrinkage through settlement. In any event, the man who will not pay his poll tax is a small citizen.

The interstate commerce commission things some railroad rates in New England too high, in which conclusion it places itself in serious disagreement with at least some of the roads. But as what the commission says "goes," reductions where ordered will have to be made, no matter what becomes of the roads and the stockholders.

Uncle Joe Cannon is to have opposition for the republican nomination for Congress in his district, his opponent saying that the veteran statesman is no longer in touch with the younger element. But Mr. Cannon is yet very spry physically, and there is nothing to indicate that he has lost any of his political agility.

A Denver woman who died some months ago left $25,000 to "down and outers," the fund to be administered by a lawyer named in the will. The intention of the woman was undoubtedly of the best, but her action will not go far toward solving the tramp problem. It will be more likely to aggravate it.

One Congressman referred to the speech of another the other day as "rich in redundancy, magnificent in inflated pomposity and unmarred by a single thought." Debaters of "scrappy" propensities ought to lay that away in their minds for future use.

It was proper that Philadelphia, the real "cradle of liberty," should have the president of the United States as its Fourth of July orator, and that he was able to emphasize his points by bringing his fist down upon the table on which the Declaration of Independence was signed.

The great flying boat in which it is proposed to attempt to cross the Atlantic has demonstrated that it is able to make a quick start. And if the trip is undertaken it will be fortunate if it doesn't show a capacity to make an equally quick stop.

George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, late minister to Greece and Montenegro, is in a position which must remind him of the old couplet, "If I am so soon to be done for, I wonder what I was begun for."

Photos by American Press Association.

This picture shows Alexander Berkman, one of the leading I. W. W. agitators of the country, whose activities at Tarrytown, N. Y., near where John D. Rockefeller lives, have brought down upon his head the wrath of the peaceful citizens of that old historic place. The picture also shows the crowd outside the town police headquarters during the trial of a dozen I. W. W. supporters who were arrested for insisting on conducting their meeting in Tarrytown. Berkman and his fellow agitators have been heckling the Rockefellers, father and son, because of their stand in the Colorado labor war.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Patriotism in Business.

We do not give to our industries the appreciation which is justly due—we rave about the army and navy and fuss about honor in the flag, forgetting that these are simply symbols and that "peace hath its victories no less renowned than war." One reason for this is the fact that our industries are "ready made." We have not had to wade through the difficulties by which man have evolved from goat and sheepskin covered savages. The growth of our industries is not so closely woven with our nation's history as in other lands; not for us the traditions of the Italian weavers with whom it was a crime to allow the secrets of the craft to be divulged outside of their own community, nor the respect with which because of their textile skill and its benefit to the country, the refugees from Holland and France were welcomed by other nations when religious persecutions drove them from their native lands. It is time for us to awaken to the fact that the nation's industries, not her military and naval forces, are her backbone, and to realize that "American Goods for Americans" is not a fact, but a question of true patriotism.—Fibre and Fabric.

GREEN ACRE CONFERENCE

Addresses by Harlan F. Ober and Stanwood Cobb.

Two interesting addresses were given on Wednesday in the Pines at Green Acre. The subject of the morning talk was the Revelation of Baha'ullah and the World Unity, the speaker Harlan Foster Ober of New Bedford, Mass. The afternoon session was conducted by Stanwood Cobb of Boston under the title of "The Essence of Islam."

Mr. Ober said in part that the logic of modern conditions is that all problems shall be considered from the standpoint of their relation to the whole world. That the Christian leaders are considering Christianity the world, in the Mohammedan land they say that logic of Mohammed's teaching is that the world will become Mohammedan, while the Jews likewise expect that humanity shall come under their teaching, Zoroastrians the same. The Revelation of Baha'ullah, through its universal unifying teachings is destined to bring about the realization of the highest aim in every religion and enable them to preserve their own reality and unify them with all other religion. Religion is the one hope of world unity. The obstacles are religious, racial and political prejudices and no one race or religion is willing to give in to any other.

With the coming of Baha'ullah at a time of greatest conflict in Persia conditions were changed through the Spiritual Truth which he brought and men who were the most degraded became clothed with the highest attributes. In place of fear, antagonism and hatred toward all other races, they became lovers of all; the weak became strong and a condition of oneness existed that had never before been manifest. So rapidly did this flame of spiritual liberty spread from city to city that it incited the keenest opposition by the clergy who arranged open opposition which resulted in the worst martyrdoms that the world has ever known.

The speaker went on to show the marvelous development that had taken place since the coming of Baha'ullah. The development of steam, postal service, electricity, wireless, newspaper and magazine service, school systems, etc. He compared Divine Science and material science to the two wings of a bird, he said that only by the uniting of both wings will civilization take its highest flight. He likened the Revelation of Baha'ullah to a dome which is being placed on the pillars of the past, destroying none but building upon and uniting all.

In conclusion he stated "The Baha' Spirit cannot be organized, it is the spirit of this age and all of the great thoughts, philosophies, socialism and other great movements find their fullest expression within it."

Mr. Cobb said, "It is difficult for the western mind to know the Mohammedan." He emphasized the importance of the western world having a clearer understanding of Mohammedanism. Out of the hosts of books written missionaries, all are more or less prejudiced. This would naturally be the case because their object is to demonstrate its inferiority to Christianity. It is possible to study all about a religion and yet miss its spirit. He outlined briefly the history of the rise and growth of Mohammedanism, and proved that the prevalent idea that Mohammed was an impostor and false prophet cannot be substantiated. Carlyle was the first to point out this fact. "No false prophet ever founded a great movement," said this speaker. He entered at length into the position that women held in the Islamic world, and spoke of polygamy and divorce. He showed that just as predestination is not an integral part of Christianity so the position of woman is not an integral part of the Islamic religion. Polygamy existed long before Mohammed, and had for ages been accepted all through the East. Mohammed's teachings raised the position of woman above what it had been before. While he permitted polygamy he did not encourage it, and as a matter of fact the modern Turk seldom has more than one wife. He also pointed out that modern Mohammedan scholars believe they are able to show from the Koran that Mohammed's teachings are not in advocacy of polygamy.

In addition to the acceptance of the creed "There is only one God and Mohammed is His Prophet," the religion demands submission to the following five forms: (1) Prayer, (2) Almsgiving, (3) Fasting, (4) Almsgiving, (5) Pilgrimage to Mecca. The speaker pointed out that just as the formal side of Christianity is breaking down so is it in Islam.

Just as the essence of Christianity is Love, the essence of Buddhism is renunciation of desire, so the essence of Islam is submission to God. This submission to the Will of God, carried to extremes leads to a fatalism which is responsible for a great deal that is deplorable in the Islamic world.

Mr. Cobb made it clear that a knowledge of the Islamic world creates a sympathy in the heart of the student, for he realizes that the simple creed of the Mohammedan, "There is only one God and Mohammed is

CURRENT OPINION

Intervention Will Not Make It Easier for Americans to Do Business in Mexico.

While I am convinced that a small number of men can overrun Mexico, however, if we are going in there, I believe we should do so with an army of twenty-five to forty thousand men and make a quick job of it and get done with it. A land where the commanding army officer of the largest seaport town of the country takes to the hills and where the mayor of that city ducks under or into bed at the first shot of an enemy and cannot be induced to come out without the use of force does not tend to impress one as to the bravery of the people of that country.

Whatever my views may be as to the fighting capacity of the Mexican people, I have never met a man who has investments in Mexico who wishes to see armed intervention in Mexico on our part if it can be avoided. It will not tend to make it easier for Americans to do business in Mexico if our government goes in there and kills off a few thousand of the inhabitants and then withdraws. They would indeed be a peculiar people if they did not, after our army had returned, throw a monkey wrench into the cogwheels of business affairs once in awhile, for the special benefit of the "Cringer."—By Marion E. Hay, Former Governor of Washington.

This prophet, has many points in its favor, as compared with the involved theology of the Christian world.

BREEZES FROM THE NEIGHBORING RESORTS

The Oceanic opened for the season on July first, and on that evening a party of 55 members of the Portsmouth Business College sailed out for supper and a dance. A large party conducted by Mr. B. W. Hayes of Haverhill visited the hotel for over the Fourth. Among the guests were:

Mrs. Howard R. Porter and family, Miss Charlotte Lewis, Westfield; Miss Ruby Davidson, Haverhill; Mr. H. E. Meyers, Boston; Mr. J. R. Wadleigh, Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Davis, Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Hunt, Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rodwell, Haverhill; Mr. G. M. Morrow, Haverhill; Mr. B. W. Hayes, Haverhill.

Another party came for the same time, members of the American Institute of Instruction, in charge of Mr. John L. Sewall of Worcester. The following were among those present: Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Small, Cambridge; Mrs. M. P. Higgins, Worcester; Mrs. H. D. Horton, Leominster; Miss D. Taft, Westboro; all interested in the Massachusetts Parents and Teachers Association, Mrs. Higgins being president. She gave an address Sunday evening and in the morning a patriotic service was held conducted by Mr. Small and George Abbott. A Candle Light service was also held Sunday and was conducted by Rev. J. E. Gregg of Pittsfield.

Those here over the Fourth and Sunday were:

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Herrick, Auburndale, Mass.; Miss Nettie King, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rogers, Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chateaux Brown, Boston.

The following Unitarians have arrived to be on hand to welcome the 300 other Unitarians expected by the end of the week: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sanquard, Dorchester, Mass.; Miss Margaret Sanquard, Dorchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burpee, Miss Caroline Burpee, Newton, Mass.; Miss Cecelia A. Walker, Boston; Miss Mary E. Wetherell, Brookline; Miss Margorie Wetherell, Cambridge.

The Unitarian Conference starts Sunday and will extend two weeks, over 600 persons being expected at both hotels.

Much interest is being shown in the Tuck Memorial which is being put up, consisting of thirteen pieces of Rockport granite. It is already one of the features of Star Island.

PORTSMOUTH THEATRE PROGRAMME

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

"The Fatal Portrait"—Kalem drama, 2 parts.

Filled with jealous rage, the artist slashes the portrait of his sweetheart—stabs her dead who is concealed behind the portrait. A fine picture.

ACT—Belle Wilton, Character Comedienne.

"A Spanish Omelet"—Diagram comedy.

He makes an omelet and starts something.

"Ribbons and Boxing Gloves"—Is on the same reel.

He takes lessons in boxing and later trims a guy who claimed to be the champion. Very funny.

ACT—Crosby, Scott & Puglia, Character Singing.

"Scaphin's Love Affair"—Edison comedy.

A sport leave the city to dodge the police. Scaphin captured by this "well" stranger agrees to elope with him. What happens will contain many laughs.

"Three Knaves and a Heathen Chinese"—on the same reel.

Joe, Fred and Jack are card sharps and nobody in town will play them. The chuck opens a laundry. Yeh, he plays poker.

"The Empty Sleeve"—Selig drama.

The love affair of soldier's children involves the heads of their families; but is surprisingly settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. A clever little colorful romance.

HAD MADISON'S RAZOR.

Prisoner Said He Was Fourth President's Great-grandson.

Savannah, Ga.—F. A. Madison, who says he is a direct descendant of President Madison, was locked up here after a street fight and after he had surrendered a razor which he said originally was the property of James Madison. The prisoner was held as a witness and then released.

Madison, who was a stranger in Savannah, was set upon and beaten by two men whom he said he did not know. His cries for assistance brought a policeman, who arrested one of the men, but was unable to catch the other. Madison also was taken to the station, and as he was being searched the policeman found the razor in the prisoner's pocket.

"Officer, please let me keep that," pleaded Madison.

"It's against the rules," replied the policeman.

"Can't you let me have it? I wouldn't take anything for it," begged the prisoner. "James Madison was my great great-grandfather and that razor and the family Bible are all of his possessions that we have left in the family now. I have been hungry and broke and without a place to sleep, but I have never parted with that razor."

He took the razor with him when he was released.

Varied Weights in Use.

Gems, the most precious of earth's productions, have been weighed from time immemorial with uncertain and varying weights. The first gem weights of which we have records were made of uniform size from the fruit of the Kauri or coral tree and from the fruit of the carob or locust tree, which were used in Africa for weighing gold and later in the east for weighing diamonds.

A Stunning Blow

By MARTHA V. MONROE

During the transition of the government of Mexico from Madero to Huerta in a young American was in the capital of that country to see what was to be seen. Paul Stanford was wealthy and had not settled down to any business or profession. He spent his time wherever there was any excitement.

During that long period when the Balkan states were preparing to resist their masters, the Turks, Stanford was there watching the preliminary movement and joined in one of the expeditions which set out from Bulgaria.

And now when Mexico was in a turmoil he was observing the struggle among the various factions. One day while dining at a restaurant he made the acquaintance of a Mexican who sat at the same table with him. Senor Jose Sandoval offered to show the American the sights of the capital and piloted him from one curiosity to another, thus acquiring his former friendship.

Then Sandoval offered to introduce his new acquaintance to some of the Mexican ladies. Stanford assented and was taken to call upon Senorita Maria Molina.

Stanford's women acquaintances were not added to, because he was satisfied to spend all his time with Senorita Molina. She was very pretty and had all the coquettish ways of a Spanish girl.

"Well," said Sandoval one day, some time after the introduction, "what do you think of the Senorita I have made you acquainted with?"

"She is very fascinating, but at the same time very unsatisfactory."

"Unsatisfactory? What do you mean by that?"

"I can't make her out. I don't know whether she is fooling me for a purpose or whether she has given me a bit of her heart."

Sandoval looked at the American scornfully. "Explain," he said.

"There is something about her that makes me distrust her," replied Stanford.

"Well, then, why do you not take pains to learn something about her?"

"How can I do that?"

"Observe when she goes out; then go into her house and—well, look about you."

"Spy on her?" asked Stanford sternly.

"Call it what you like. You are in love with her. Being in love with her, I presume you wish to marry her. Are you so squeamish that you would marry a woman who may be an adventuress rather than satisfy yourself that she is a proper person to be your wife?"

Stanford listened, but did not reply. Sandoval continued:

"I am too fond of you not to try to prevent you from making a mistake. Either do what I suggest or drop Senorita Molina at once and never see her again."

Stanford acted upon neither of these alternatives at once. Indeed, he never intended to act upon either of them. But one day he called on his enchantress during her absence from home, and Sandoval's suggestion came buzzing about his ears like a humdrum.

But he could not sleep to spy upon the woman he loved. Having been told that Senorita Molina would not be long gone, he sat down in a corner to wait for her. He fell into a doze, from which he was awakened by a man's voice in the hall speaking in Spanish.

"Senorita, I have brought word to you at the risk of my life. The general says that you have done so much for the constitutional cause that he hopes you will not refuse to do this one thing more. The president must be—"

Here the man's voice dropped so low that Stanford failed to hear him. There was a reply, also in a low voice—Senorita Molina's—and then a man's footsteps were heard leaving the house, followed by a woman's going upstairs.

Stanford did not like the idea of the lady's knowing that he had her secret. It occurred to him to leave before she should come downstairs. The twilight had come on, and, going out through the door, he made his way under some trees and disappeared.

The next day he met Sandoval. The latter noticed that he looked troubled. "Have you met Senorita Molina lately?" he asked of the American.

"I have not had a word with her since I saw you last," was the reply, and Stanford turned the conversation into another channel. But what he had overheard troubled him. He believed that he knew what was meant by the unfinished sentence. He was horrified that the girl he loved should be an assassin. He brooded over the matter till he felt that he must prevent her from staining her fair hands with blood. Whom could he trust? No one but his friend Sandoval. He told Sandoval that the president's life was in danger and asked him to impart the warning to the man it concerned. Sandoval did not ask him where he had required the information. But two hours after the interview Stanford called on Senorita Molina, to learn that she had been arrested and taken away. The next day he received a farewell from her written before she was to be secretly executed. She said she loved him.

Before leaving Mexico Stanford learned that his friend Sandoval was a member of the secret police. He had used the lover to trip the woman he loved.

Stanford has never recovered and never will recover from the blow.

RAILROAD NOTES

Up to 8.30 this morning 130 people from this city had taken advantage of cut rates on the Boston and Maine and took in the excursion to Boston.

Arthur H. Cook recently appointed a traveling conductor on the Boston and Maine railroad, has returned to his former position as a regular passenger conductor.

The men at the Boston and Maine shops at Concord have raised a considerable amount of money, which has been sent to Salem for the relief of the sufferers.

Affiliated employees bodies of western railroads met Monday to perfect strike plans. Strike vote is expected to be announced this week. According to members of executive committee, 30,000 freight handlers and 22,000 clerks threaten to join in strike movement and will take a strike vote.

The order that has been issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad to its Altoona shops to construct 84 locomotives is not a new equipment order, but consists of the remainder of the 170 locomotives which the Pennsylvania announced early this year it would build during 1914. The shops have turned out 86 locomotives of the order during the first six months of this year.

Southern Railway is in the market for 37,000 tons of steel rails.

The car of the American Red Cross society is now at the Boston and Maine station at Hildesford.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I wish to announce to the public that I am prepared to do trucking and furniture moving by auto truck at reasonable rates. Long distance trucking a specialty. Telephone connection.

WILSON SAYS DEMOCRATS NOT ENEMIES OF BIG BUSINESS

Makes Statement Defending His Appointments to Reserve Board.

Washington, July 8.—Declaring it would be unfair to regard the Democratic party as the enemy of big or little business, President Wilson gave out today a statement in support of Paul M. Warburg of New York and Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, his nominees for the Federal Reserve Board.

President Wilson's statement follows:

"It would be particularly unfair to the Democratic party and the Senate itself to regard it as the enemy of business, big or little. I am sure that it does not regard a man as an object of suspicion merely because he has been connected with great business enterprises.

"It knows that the business of the country has been chiefly promoted in recent years by enterprises organized on a great scale, and that the vast majority of the men connected with what we have come to call big business are honest, incorruptible and patriotic.

"The country may be certain that it is clear to members of the Senate as it is clear to all thoughtful men that those who have tried to make big business what it ought to be are the men to be encouraged and honored, whenever they respond without reserve to the call of public service.

"Business to Unite Every Force."

"I predict with the greatest confidence that nothing done by the Democratic majority of the Senate of the United States will be of a sort to throw suspicion upon such men. Mr. Jones and Mr. Warburg, in manifesting their willingness to make personal sacrifices and put their great experience and ability at the service of the government without thought of personal advantage, in the organization of a great reform which promises to be so beneficial to the Nation, are setting an example of patriotism and of public spirit which the whole country admires.

"It is the obvious business of statesmanship at this turning point in our development to recognize ability and character, wherever it has been displayed, and unite every force for the rebuilding of legitimate business along the new lines which are now clearly indicated for the future."

Is Urging Warburg to Serve

The President said today he earnestly hoped Mr. Warburg would reconsider his decision not to accept the nomination, and that he was urging him to do so. He expressed confidence that Mr. Jones would be confirmed.

The Senate Banking Committee had no meeting today, but an opportunity will be afforded tomorrow for a formal motion to withdraw the invitation that Mr. Warburg appear, to be questioned. It was said today by members that a majority probably would oppose it. Acting Chairman Hitchcock said no suggestion had reached him from Administration officials for withdrawal of the invitation.

The nomination of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago also will be taken up tomorrow. It was not certain today that Mr. Jones would be approved by a majority.

It became known that several members of the committee are not so much interested in the American connections of Mr. Warburg as in any interest he may have in foreign banking houses and in his foreign investments.

SALEM GETTING A ONG VERY FAST

Salem, July 8.—Everything connected with the fire situation in this city is as satisfactory today as could be expected. Reports received from the refugee camps show that health conditions continue good and that all are being well cared for. It is planned to have police duty at the camps performed by local militiamen, at present out of work, who will be qualified as special policemen today.

Nothing of special note occurred at the food supply station this forenoon. There appears to be no diminution in the number of rations issued. Tonight Now-and-Then Hall will be abandoned as headquarters of the relief committee.

Tomorrow, the Phillips School Building will be opened for business by the following divisions of the committee on relief: Rehabilitation, housing, emergency, information, transportation.

MARINE OFFICER KILLED BY A FALL

Washington July 8.—Col. Frank L. Denny retired officer of the Marine Corps was almost instantly killed early today when he fell over a balcony in his home in the floor below.

The report to the police said he was walking in his sleep.

Col. Denny's family believe he was seized with an attack of vertigo to which he was subject and fell while moving about the house. He struck his head upon a marble-top table crushing his skull. When a physician arrived he was beyond help. The colonel's daughter awakened by the crash found her father dying where he had fallen. The coroner gave a certificate of accidental death.

Col. Denny was one of the storm centers in a row in the Marine Corps three years ago in which it was charged that a number of staff officers in Washington were controlling the corps. Mr. Meyer Secretary of the Navy after an investigation ordered all the officers concerned to distant posts sending Col. Denny to San Francisco.

Early in his administration President Wilson returned all to Washington Col. Denny was prominent in the social and club life of the capital.

Frank L. Denny was born in Indiana and was appointed to the Marine Corps from that state June 16, 1880. At one time he was head of the Quartermaster's Department, with the rank of colonel, dating from March 3, 1899.

CIVIC EDUCATION THROUGH DISCUSSION

The arousing of a state-wide civic consciousness and civic interest among young and old by means of discussion of five questions of local concern in the school house and at the country cross-roads, is the undertaking of the university of North Carolina. The university stands on the doctrine of Wendell Phillips that "agitation is education. Agitation is marshalling the conscience of a nation to mold its laws."

With a record of emphasis upon debate from its founding in 1795, the university has gone about it to systematize and universalize discussion of every conceivable question of vital local interest, not only by the youth of the state in the high schools, but by adult organizations of farmers, of women, or of any other available group.

For some years graduates of the university have established debating clubs in the schools, where they have gone to teach, members of the faculty have answered communications, and materials have been sent to all parts of the state from the university library and the state library commission. Recently a high school debating union was organized, including more than a hundred schools, to conduct state-wide debating contests.

As a part of its extensive plans in this direction, the extension bureau of the university has just issued a manual on Public Discussion and Debate "to stimulate discussion of public questions chiefly by high school students, but also by community clubs and public organizations." This manual suggests a large number of questions of immediate interest in North Carolina. A considerable number of the questions are analyzed, arguments pro and con being given. References are given to easily available material, much of which may be obtained by application to the university, to the library commission, or to public offices. In addition to this, instructions are given as to how to organize for such discussion and how to conduct them.

While some of the questions suggested for discussion are of national significance, the chief value of the work of the university lies in the way it focuses attention upon real problems of immediate local concern.—By Arthur W. Dunn, U. S. Bureau of Education.

Here is one case of it. George S. Chandler, 420 Pleasant street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I do a great deal of walking in my work and in that way my kidneys became weakened, causing me much suffering. About three years ago I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They cured me and I have had little trouble since. Sometimes when I overwork or do any heavy lifting, I notice lameness in my back, but on such occasions a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills bring relief. I have recommended this remedy to many of my friends, and in every instance where it has been tried, benefit has followed. Doan's Kidney Pills can be procured at Phillips' Drug Store and should be given a thorough trial by every kidney sufferer."

THIS picture illustrates the opening step in the so called turkey trot, but what is really the one step. The girl should be held in such a way that she is not too far away, and both should stand erect. If there is any lean let it be toward the girl. The dance is nothing more than a quick walk in time to the music and must be done on the balls of the feet. Hopping, bending the knees too far and shaking the shoulders and elbows are impossible. The entire movement should be from the hips.

NRS. CARMAN IS ACCUSED

Dr. Carman of this action. Word was sent to Mrs. Carman that she was about to be arrested, and a few minutes later county officials entered the physician's office. Mrs. Carman, pale but controlling her emotions, accompanied by her husband, her attorney and others, came a minute later. Coroner Norton, for years an intimate friend of the family, with tears in his eyes, read the charge and the warrant for the arrest which he had signed.

Mrs. Carman stood erect, facing him. Between them, on the floor, was a dark stain marking the spot where Mrs. Bailey died.

"Are you guilty of this charge of not guilty?" asked an assistant district attorney.

"Not guilty," answered Mrs. Carman.

"The sorry I had to — — —" began the coroner. The door leading from the office to the waiting room opened and Elizabeth Carman entered.

"Mr. Pettit," she said to the sheriff, "When is my mother coming home?"

The sheriff placed his hand on the child's head and answered "Tomorrow."

"Come over here and sit on my knee," said Mr. Carman's attorney. "We'll take care of your mother, all right."

Mrs. Carman was then allowed to go to the second floor of her home, where her mother, Mrs. Platt Conklin has been ill in bed since the day after the murder. Mrs. Carman kissed her mother, who told her not to worry. Then Mrs. Carman went to her own room, obtained some personal belongings, dressed herself in a suit of white, returned to the first floor and told the sheriff she was ready.

As the automobile conveying Mrs. Carman, her husband and the sheriff rolled through Hempstead on its way to the jail, it passed a frail little girl in black. She was Madeline Bailey, 17 years old, daughter of their murdered mother. She was not aware that a woman held as her mother's slayer was passing, nor did other members of the Bailey family know that Mrs. Carman, on her way to jail, passed within a few blocks of their home. The first they knew of the result of the inquest was when the reporters called.

When Mrs. Duryen, the dead woman's mother, and her husband, William D. Bailey, were told of the arrest, the mother said: "If Mrs. Carman is guilty, God help her. If she is innocent, may God help her! This must have broken up a happy home."

Upon arrival at the jail, Dr. Carman, alighted from the automobile with his wife's suitcase, took her arm and led down a passageway to the jail. The doors were swung open and Mrs. Carman passed inside.

Although a cell had been prepared for her, she was taken to the wardens' quarters on the top floor. There her "pedigree" was taken and she was placed in the care of the matron, who gave up her own room in the prison. Dr. Carman and his wife's attorney remained in the jail until late tonight.

In the court house adjoining the jail, ten grand jury tomorrow will begin its investigation of the murder. All the witnesses who have appeared before three sessions of the inquest and some others were today served with subpoenas.

Mrs. Carman's attorney late tonight said his client would appear before the grand jury at any time the district attorney desired, sign a waiver of immunity and answer all questions she might be asked.

Palatable, Economical, Nourishing.

A Nebr. woman has outlined the prize food in a few words and that from personal experience she writes: "After our long experience with Grape-Nuts, I cannot say enough in its favor. We have used this food almost continually for seven years."

"We sometimes tried other advertised breakfast foods but we invariably returned to Grape-Nuts as the most palatable, economical and nourishing of all."

"When I quit tea and coffee and began to use Postum and Grape-Nuts, I was almost a nervous wreck. I was so irritable I could not sleep nights, had no interest in life."

"After using Grape-Nuts a short time I began to improve and all these ailments have disappeared and now I am a well woman. My two children have been almost raised on Grape-Nuts, which they eat three times a day."

"They are pictures of health and have never had the least symptom of stomach trouble, even through the most severe stage of whooping cough they could retain Grape-Nuts when all else failed."

"Grape-Nuts food has saved doctor bills, and has been, therefore, a most economical food for us."

CHICAGO TO TAKE POINTS FROM EUROPE

Chicago, July 8.—European railway terminals, vice problems and public schools are the object of study of a Chicago Aldermanic Commission which prepared to leave today for a six weeks tour of European capitals. Mrs. Ella Plagg Young, superintendent of schools, and four of her assistants in the Board of Education, joined the commission today.

The commission, originally named to investigate methods of European cities in handling railway problems, later was broadened to include a study of social evil conditions abroad, and it was decided yesterday that it would be a good idea to send a body of Chicago educators with the commission.

BIGGEST LOG DRIVE EVER KNOWN IN THE EAST

North Stratford, July 8. The biggest log drive ever attempted east of the Mississippi—a little less than 50,000,000 feet, worth $21 per thousand and at the mill—will have passed over fifteen-mile falls on the Connecticut river near East Stratford, Vt., by tonight. Once this is accomplished, the hardest and most dangerous portion of the 218-mile course between North Stratford and Northampton, Mass., destination, will be over and the busy drivers of the Connecticut Valley Lumber company are certain to rejoice in consequence.

Behind the big drive, waiting for the course to clear a bit, comes 20,000 cords of pulp wood, owned by the American Realty company, bound for Bellows Falls to be turned into paper, and behind all this, as well, lies 6000 cords of the same material "hoisted" at South Lancaster, until the other fellows get out of the way. The smaller lot of pulp wood is owned by Joseph Bouville of North Stratford, who expects to eventually deliver it at Pittsfield, Vt.

There are many experienced lumbermen who declare that the chances seem a bit dubious of the big log drive getting down to Northampton without having some 20,000,000 or so feet tied up somewhere through low water. In any event the "drive" will be weeks behind its regular schedule. Yet this year the mammoth size of the drive has to be reckoned with. Nothing approaching its size has ever before been carried on in the East—that is, in the way of logs. The Androscoggin has seen some big drives, particularly in connection with pulp wood, but the latter are cut in four-foot lengths, while in the big Connecticut river drive this year the logs are 32 feet, and in many instances, 40 feet in length.

HE MAY GET BACK

Favorable report was ordered by the House Naval Committee today on a bill to reinstate Joseph Elliot Austin, of Wisconsin, who was dropped from the navy while a midshipman because he was married in violation of the naval regulations.

Mr. Austin was married while on a cruise following his graduation at Annapolis. The wedding ceremony took place at Honolulu about two years ago.

He testified that he searched through the naval regulations to ascertain whether there was any prohibition against marrying and he could find no such rule. Besides, he informed his commanding officer that he was about to be married and that officer granted him leave.

The committee also favorably reported a bill to reinstate Commodore De Witt Ten Eyck Vreder, U. S. N., who was punished by the 1910 plucking board. A previous bill seeking his reinstatement was vetoed by President Taft after being put through both houses of Congress.

FLOOD THREATENS VALLEY

Southern Pacific President Calls for $1,500,000 to Prevent Further Trouble in California.

San Francisco, July 8.—The entire Imperial Valley in southern California is threatened by the flood waters of the Colorado river, according to a statement made today by President William Sprague of the Southern Pacific company, who has recently returned from the district.

"Conditions are threatening now and will be more so if not attended to," he said.

"If there is any temporizing with the difficulty an expenditure of $1,500,000 will have to be made," Mr. Sprague declared. The Southern Pacific cannot afford to spend any more money to control the Colorado river. He urged a united appeal to the government for relief.

"We have reached our limit. We have already expended $2,500,000 on that river. The work is too great for a single corporation to handle."

OSLER TELLS AUDIENCE 90 PER CENT ARE TUBERCULOUS

He Startles Huge Oxford Audience—Demands Rigid Control over Consumptives for State Good.

Leeds, England, July 8.—Sir William Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford University, today startled the huge audience attending the conference of the Association for the Prevention of Consumption by telling them that they were practically all tuberculous. He said:

"If with the aid of radium and a microscope I could look at the chests of the audience I am addressing in 90 per cent of you I should discover a small focus or area of tuberculous."

Sir William demanded in the interests of the state the establishment of rigid control over consumptives.

ABOUT THE STATE

Totherly, June 26, has withdrawn it at the earnest request of his superiors, particularly of Maj. Chauncey H. Hoyt, commander of the Coast Artillery Corps. Maj. Hoyt has promised him a place on his staff and Capt. Crowley yesterday said that he has decided to accept the promotion. It is understood he will be made quartermaster.

Baldwin of 13 Harrison street and Miss Marguerite Riley of 14 Everett street at Brattleboro, Vt., while among home from a week-end party at Baldwin's parents in Monson, Mass. Baldwin, who is 21 and salesman for a Manchester electric company, and Miss Riley, who is just 21 have been engaged since their high school days, but the sudden wedding in Brattleboro before the town clerk has surprised everybody.

SUIT AGAINST NEW HAVEN NOT TO BE RUSHED

Washington, July 8. Although the Department of Justice is preparing to go ahead and file the suit for the dissolution of the New Haven Railroad System, Atty. Gen. McReynolds still is hopeful of a settlement without a prolonged fight in the courts.

As was announced some time ago President Wilson and the Attorney General had agreed that the suit should be filed not later than July 16, unless the Massachusetts Legislature and the executive committee of the railroad should agree on certain legislation necessary for disposing of some of the stocks which the Government contends are being held in violation of law.

Administration officials on their faith of a settlement without a long fight on the fact that a new Legislature of Massachusetts comes into existence on Jan. 1. Under ordinary procedure a suit filed this month would not proceed very far by that time; and could be halted whenever the necessary legislation for a peaceful settlement shall be enacted.

DEMOCRATS BREAKING UP CIVIL SERVICE

Washington, July 8.—Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire wants to know how many officials of the grade of the commercial experts who will be appointed as soon as the legislative bill is passed have been appointed outside of the civil service during the sixty-third Congress. "It is a very large number," states the senator, "and if we are going to ignore the civil service law every time we come to a point where we are to select fourteen or twenty or forty or fifty men, more or less, to do work that could be done by men who are on the rolls of the Civil Service Commission, who have taken the examination and who ought to have consideration. It looks to me as though it is a bad condition of things." Senator Gallinger predicted yesterday when he announced his intention to offer a resolution inquiring into these appointments that fourteen "good Democratic workers" will get these positions without any reference to the civil service law.

Inquiry at the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce this morning developed that F. L. Tobler, who will be appointed commercial expert for Boston as soon as the legislative, executive and judicial bills pass, is a civil service employee of seven years standing who has been promoted and held his post for five years. The bureau considers him one of its best men because of his intimate knowledge of the general policy of the bureau, as well as his practical experience in foreign trade promotion work. "It will be a distinct loss to us to have him go," said an official of the bureau.

Chief Baldwin of the bureau formally notified Representative Peters this morning that Boston would get the commercial agent for the appointment of whom Mr. Peters and others of the delegation have been working.

WALSH SEES PRESIDENT

Goes to Washington to Plead for Sale—New Haven Situation Not a Factor in His Visit.

Washington, July 8.—Governor Walsh will call on the President at 2:30 this afternoon, accompanied by Representative Gardner. The governor was scheduled to arrive in Washington about 1:30. At the White House this morning it was stated that the Salomon relief appropriation was the only matter to be taken up, though the New Haven situation will be gone into incidentally. Governor Walsh has no appointment to see the attorney general.

UNQUENCHABLE FIRE

A Georgia woman who had moved to Philadelphia found that she could not be contented without the colored mammy who had been her servant for many years. She arrived on the very day that her mistress had to leave town.

Before departing the lady had only time to explain to many some of the modern conveniences with which her apartment was furnished.

The gas stove interested the colored woman most. After the mistress of the household had lighted the oven, the broiler and other burners, and felt certain that the old servant understood the stove she hurried for her train.

She was absent two weeks and on her return one of her first questions to mammy was how she had got along.

"I got along fine, Miss Florence; didn't have no trouble at all," was the reply. And the air gas stove—my! my! that's she is the best stove I made. Why, Why do you know Miss Florence that she you lighted ain't gone out yet!"—Youth's Companion.

EIGHT HOURS AND MORE PAY

Brewery Workers and Bottlers are Working Under New Schedule Which Stands Till May, 1916

After several conferences during the past two weeks, the management of the several brewing companies of this city and the Brewery Workers' Union agreed upon a working schedule on Wednesday. The articles signed today by both parties agree that eight hours instead of nine shall constitute a day's work, and the weekly payments shall be increased $1. Every man working seven days, such as firemen, night workmen, etc., is granted two weeks' vacation during each year. For all overtime work the men get 50 cents an hour, an increase of 10 cents.

This arrangement it is understood, does not apply to the men in the delivery departments and teamsters. Some agreement between the companies and drivers and delivery employees will be made later. The bottling departments of the three establishments will work under the same schedule as the brewery workmen, which will stand until May, 1916.
